

Bereavement Services

As part of our commitment to quality end-of-life care and person-centred care planning, Chester Pearce Associates provides access to specialist information and support in respect of bereavement care and funeral services.

This is always a sensitive area for family or professionals to explore with people of any age, but our qualified Funeral Directors can visit to discuss personal wishes and answer questions, all in total confidence.

Planning for a funeral in advance has become more popular in the last ten years. It provides an opportunity to reduce the stress on family and friends otherwise left to try and interpret wishes at what is an already emotional time. A growing number of people also choose to pay for their funeral in advance, thus removing the financial burden from the family when the time comes.

At Chester Pearce we ensure that all personal wishes and details are recorded for future reference. We have no structured forms which give tick boxes and options, but instead come with a blank canvas onto which wishes can be placed and a truly personalised outcome achieved.

“They made me feel like I was talking to an old friend, not a complete stranger”

Modern families can find themselves with members spread all over the country. Chester Pearce has adapted its practice to ensure the same standards of service can be achieved, no matter where family members live. We do this by ensuring the availability of the same staff, the same trusted faces wherever in the country a family may need them. This familiarity can bring great comfort at a time of great stress.

Chester Pearce Associates has a team of providers built up over many years enabling us to offer the full spectrum of Bereavement Services no matter what or where the requirements might be.

It is our assurance to you that you will receive the continuity of care you require and deserve, with the backing of a highly qualified team of like minded specialists.

Our Philosophy - everything, a reflection of you

Arranging a funeral is an acutely personal journey for those involved. There should be no right and wrong answers, no boundaries preset by the funeral service, but instead, a blank canvas onto which ideas are written, and wishes expressed.

From fundamental choices of burial or cremation, venues, types and colour of cars and the material the coffin is made from, to the more intricate details of flowers, order of service, music and content, the Chester Pearce funeral director brings a ‘can do’ professional attitude. You have my assurance of quality, care, compassion and service, no matter when, or where we are needed.

From the Agincare Group

Agincare continues to be pioneering in its approach to care provision and as such we are looking to extend a person's experience of a 'continuous caring relationship' with a trusted professional care organisation. This frequently extends into end of life care, a difficult topic for many of us.

By expanding our network of highly qualified and specialist organisations, we can assist to better support our clients throughout their time with our service, providing them with the information upon which they can make informed choices about their lives and future needs.

There are many different aspects of bereavement, and Chester Pearce Associates provide a complete support service throughout the UK, working together with Agincare for both clients and staff.

Chester Pearce Associates guarantee an assurance of quality care, compassion and service, no matter when, or where needed.

Please do not hesitate to contact us if we can be of assistance to you in arranging a funeral for a loved one, or to discuss any aspects of your advanced care planning requirements.
